They are just about 18 years old and are from the campus. So they are not getting that much exposure into the American culture.

According to Hitt, the students seemed fascinated by the various aspects of American society.

His impression of the country, at first, from my own point of view, that they related to death of ourselves. Speaking culturally, our two cultures are very much alike. Only, strong, and it is interesting to watch.

Hitt said that if Nihon University and the U.S. system can develop a plan for working together on a program similar to this, it could prove to be a very profitable venture and would be a very good vehicle to speak English and meeting many Americans, she could communicate with.

She added that she visited an American family and learned that U.S. customs are quite different from Japan's and that "you have a wide view to think to live it quite different."

This trip is a very beautiful and the students everybody says, hello, and greets me. Everybody is so friendly. I thank you for your kindness.

Lakayko Siga was impressed with the comfort of the dorms as compared to the living conditions in Japan. He said that he now understands our customs and the way we think and that this should help him in the future.

Siga said that what he wanted to know most is how much Americans know about the Japanese. He decided that Americans' knowledge in this area is lacking.

According to Siga, Americans entertain negative views of the Japanese.

They've helped my business out quite a bit. They kept my business going during the summer," said Don Nanney, manager owner of Cheese and Stuff. "Summer is usually our slowest time and they have been a boost to us this summer."

"I'm very glad the Japanese students (were) here."

Feresa Scott of Ken-Ten Sports said that the students definitely helped the business by buying such items as shoes, tennis racquets and shorts.

"We were expecting a slump. There was a slow period until they came."

"They bought a lot of tennis racquets and they want stuff made in the U.S.A.," said Stephany Robinson, an employee of Hunt's Athletic Goods. "They bought a lot of Converse tennis shoes and they're pretty good for business."

Colins Byrn, manager of Hunt's, said that his business has had good results dealing with the Japanese, "except for

According to Hitt, the students are very interested in the American culture. He said that many of the students are very interested in the American culture.

If the administration of the U.S. system can't find enough time to put that together, then they're really in trouble over the next ten or fifteen years. Hitt said, "We have to be able to take opportunities that come along and make something of them, rather than just let them go through the system and let them go."

Circus to Visit UTM

By Barry Warbritton
Opinions Editor

Northwest Tennessee just doesn't happen every year.

The Royal Hanneford circus will return to UTM for the second straight year on Tuesday, Sept. 29, for two performances in the P.E. Complex.

The performances are scheduled for 4:30 and 8 p.m. and the price of the tickets, which are on sale at the Information Desk, is $5 for adults and $3 for students and children.

The event, sponsored by the SGA, the Department of Campus Recreation and the Pepsi Cola Bottling Company of Martin, features the world renown Hanneford Riding Act; Tajana's Tigers, a comedy horse show, an elephant display, an aerial ballet production, a trapeze act and clowns, acrobats and tumblers.

David Belote, assistant director of Campus Recreation, said that last year's production of the circus was "fantastic."

"We had 8000 people to attend both shows," he said. "It went over much better than we expected in every respect. In some respects because of the response we got last year, that just sold us to do it again."

In pointing to the uniqueness of the event, Belote said that a circus of the caliber of the Hanneford's visiting

Belote emphasized that the circus is meant to be enjoyed by all ages. "It has something for everyone."

According to a press release from the Office of University Relations, the Royal Hanneford Circus was formed in the early 1900s by descendants of Edwin Hanneford, who performed for King George III in England in the 1700s. Members of the circus first performed throughout Europe during the early 1900s, with the first United States' performance coming in 1915 at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Ancestors of the present-day Hanneford Circus troop performed with the Barnum and Bailey Circus, the Ringling Brothers Circus, the Sells Floto Circus and the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Some of our classrooms aren't classrooms.

Military science courses are courses in leadership, management and military procedure. You'll learn how to manage people, to handle money and equipment. But you'll get more than just the classroom theory. You'll experience it.

So when you study map reading and land navigation, be ready to get your boots dirty in activities like rappelling, orienteering or river rafting. When you study communications, plan on communicating. And when you study weapons, expect to qualify at the rifle range.

Then, when you decide to enter advanced ROTC courses as a junior, plan on applying everything you've learned at a six week summer leadership camp.

Military science courses offer you challenges. Physical as well as mental. To prepare you for leadership responsibility as an Army officer when you graduate.

If that's the kind of challenge and experience you're looking for, you're the kind of student we're looking for.

ARMY ROTC.

Sororities Rush For Freshmen

Alpha? Beta? Sigma? Zeta? What are all those funny words and why do all those smiling girls keep rushing around saying them?

Well, the letters are a part of the Greek alphabet, and they are spotlighted on the freshmen this week as five women's sororities hold Formal Rush for the 1981-82 year.

Involving approximately 275 rushees in a whirl of parties and activities, the week-long rush is held to recruit members for Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Omicron Pi, Chi Omega, Sigma Kappa and Zeta Tau Alpha.

"Many girls who go through rush later decide not to join a sorority, and many go through with no intention of joining, but many girls find just what they want in sorority life," said sorority representative Tracy Owens.

The Sorority Rush operates under the direction and rules of the Panhellenic Council, composed of representatives of each sorority.

Maribeth Maxey, President of the Panhellenic Council, and the fifteen other members of the Council have been planning since spring for this year's rush. The sororities themselves have also been practicing songs and rehearsing skits as they get their spirits ready for the recruiting week.

The rushees began activities with Tuesday's Introductory Party and the Sorority Lodge Open House. Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock is the designated time for the first party as rushees begin to pick up invitations.

The sororities compile individual invitations, and each rushee may accept or decline an invitation to any of the three parties.

The week ends on Monday, September 21, when the rushees pick up their bids and then begin their one-quarter pledge period before formal initiation in January.

The procedure starts again later in the quarter as the three black sororities, Alpha Kappa Alpha, Delta Sigma Theta and Zeta Phi Beta, begin their recruitment period.

Although a formal date has not yet been set for the formal rush, the three sororities will introduce themselves on Thursday night of this week and then again on Black Awareness Day, September 24.

"Nothing will dispel enthusiasm like a small admission fee."

Do You Want To Be Like Rastus?

Emulate Rastus And Choose Success

By Barry Warbritton
Opinions Editor

Editor's Note: This column was originally written to influence high schoolers to attend college. Even so, a newly arrived freshman should be able to find some amount of edification here.

Harold is an exceptionally bright student. He works hard and is evaluated well by most of his teachers. He even got an A in geometry. But, going against the advice of his guidance counselor, Harold decided not to seek a college education. Instead, craving the dollar and freedom from restraint, he took a job pumping gas. Twenty years and 13 kids later, he is still pumping gas. At the neighborhood pub, where Harold is a frequent guest, the bartender turns an attentive ear to his client's troubles, which include an unfaithful wife (she claims they married too young and wants to make up for lost time), two kids in reform school and another on the way, financial troubles so great he fears he must declare bankruptcy, a worn out automobile and a decaying house. After the pub closes, Harold returns home and beats his dog.

With dancing blue eyes, cheeks that dimple when she smiles and a form that Venus di Milo might have envied, Suzie is a natural for the cheerleading squad. She is president of her high-school Beta Club and the epitome of the wholesome, clean All-American girl. After graduation, she becomes a skillet cleaner in a local truck stop. Twenty years later, she is obese, filthy, a divorcee with two kids and finds it difficult to collect alimony from a husband who's fled to Afganistan.

Now let's look at the flip side of the coin: Rastus is only an average high school student, but he has big dreams. After graduation, he attends a highly esteemed university, working part time to help his parents pay for his tuition. He receives a degree in Communications and becomes a reporter with a little known newspaper in Missouri. Due to his diligence and skill in his profession, Rastus is offered a job with a large metropolitan newspaper, which he accepts. He becomes an ace reporter, and cracks a scandal bigger than Watergate. He becomes wealthy from the sale of his 490 page account of the scandal, What The President Did In June. Every major newspaper in the country wants him on its staff. Our hero finally accepts editorship of the New York Times and eventually retires. Last fall he donated $100,000 to his alma mater's library fund. He now lives in a yacht off the coast of Florida and is researching material for a book about sand fleas.

If the pictures I've painted of Harold and Suzie frighten you, I've done a part of my job; if my account of Rastus intrigues you, I've done two-thirds of my job; if you decide to pursue a college education, my job is complete.

You're probably well aware of the "reasons" many graduating high school seniors give for not attending college. Harold or Suzie probably offered many of the same excuses: "I want a new pickup so I can impress the girls on Saturday night....I want a life of my own....You can't make no money and go to college at the same time....I can't wait to get married and be a status symbol....ad infinitum."

But Harold's and Suzie's lives have turned out to be less than Paradise. Their marriages are either on the rocks or dissolved and their incomes leave a lot to be desired. After twenty years, Harold's once new automobile serves its owner with all the coldness and crankiness of his once new spouse.

Rastus, on the other hand, looked to the future. Not just the immediate future of the Man About Town, who flourisheth for a season and then fadeth away, but our celebrated reporter viewed life in a larger perspective. True, he perhaps had to undergo some temporary privations not encountered by his companions, and he certainly was faced with the necessity for study, but these paid off in the long run as he grew "healthy, wealthy, and wise."

It is not my purpose in this column to influence you, gentle reader, to enroll in UTM's Communications curriculum or even to cause you to attend UTM at all, though I certainly would not be disappointed if you did. Rather, I've tried to make you see the necessity for a college education. Enroll in any university, in any curriculum, but take "the path less traveled by," the path that leads to success. It is my sincere hope that you will follow Rastus' example. Choose success.

Pacers To Meet MTSU

The University of Tennessee at Martin football team will be looking for its second consecutive win this season when it visits Middle Tennessee State University for a 7:30 p.m. contest on Saturday.

UTM, coached by Lynn Amedee, opened its 1981 schedule last Saturday afternoon at home with a rousing 19-7 victory over Gulf South Conference opponent Troy State.

Middle Tennessee State was knocked from the unbeaten ranks on Saturday with a 42-19 loss to The University of Tennessee at Chattanooga. The Blue Raiders, coached by James "Boots" Donnelly, had earlier beaten Ohio Valley Conference foe Akron, 10-7.

The UTM Pacers came from behind to win Saturday's game against Troy State when senior quarterback Tommy Overton of Martin plunged over from the 1 with 11:38 remaining in the third quarter to give his team a 12-7 advantage.

Overton later teamed up with his younger brother, Trace, on an 18-yard touchdown pass with 6:31 left in the game to lock up the Pacer win. Kicker Ryan Generts of Maryville came on to add the extra point to give UTM its 19-7 final.

Senior tailback Everett DeVeaux scored UTM's first touchdown of the day when he bulled in from the 1 with 14:58 remaining in the second quarter.

Tommy Overton finished the game as UTM's leading ground gainer with 62 yards on 13 carries. The 6-0, 176-pounder also connected on 11 of 17 passes for 84 yards.

"I thought Tommy played a good football game," said Amedee. "He just did what it takes to win. Like I have said before, Tommy can't pass or run but he wins. He's really a team leader. He doesn't have great speed, but most of the time when he ran the ball on Saturday it was a called play. I am really proud of him—he's paid his dues."

DeVeaux, a 5-9, 187-pounder, was UTM's second leading rusher against Troy State with 32 yards on 12 attempts. Freshman tailback Steve Mathis of Humboldt looked impressive in his debut with 19 yards on seven carries.

'81 Season Opens

By Kathy Dennis
Sports Editor

The University of Tennessee at Martin Lady Pacer Volleyball Team will explode into action Friday, September 18, as they meet up with Cleveland State University for their first match of the 1981 season.

With nine returning players and two new recruits, the Lady Pacers will face the season with experience and knowledge. The "sleeping giant" from last year is awakening as time and a lot of hard work has pasted the team together, hopefully to produce a winning season.

The Lady Pacers, under Head Coach Lucia Jones and Assistant Coach Cindy Boyd, have practiced year-round but have been under intense pre-season workouts for the past three weeks.

The orange and whites have been preparing their offense and defense to the fullest in hopes of executing well against their opponents.

Captains of the Lady Pacer Team, Sandy Buswell and Nancy Barnes, feel as though the match will be a challenge but will start the season off with a bang.

"The team is prepared and the girls feel confident about not only our first game, but the season ahead," said Buswell.

The match will be held in the UTM Fieldhouse beginning at 7 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend and to cheer the Lady Pace-hers on.

Pacers. . .

All-GSC flanker Dwayne McKinney, a junior from Halls, was the leading Pacer pass receiver with four receptions for 31 yards. Trace Overton also had two catches for 28 yards.

Middle Tennessee State is led by junior quarterback Brown Sanford who has connected on 17 of 54 passes this season for 235 yards. His favorite target is flanker Butch Hamby, who has hauled in three passes for 52 yards.

Wide receiver Henry Bean has two receptions in 1981 for 41 yards and tight end David Little has caught three passes for 33 yards for the Blue Raiders.

The last time UTM and Middle Tennessee State met 31-32 winner. But Middle on the gridiron was in 1979 Tennessee State leads the when the Pacers came away a series 7-6-1.

What Does SGA Do For Me?

We, the Student Government Association (SGA), welcome you to the University of Tennessee at Martin. You became an official member of SGA when you enrolled at UTM. Therefore, we will need your full support in each of our activities.

SGA is basically a simple organization whose prime objective is to serve you, the student. SGA can be broken down into two separate departments.

The Cabinet is made up of thirteen members. These thirteen people include six elected officers and seven appointed officers. The Cabinet is subdivided into the Executive branch and the Judicial branch. The Executive branch is composed of the elected officers and their assistants. The Judicial branch are those officers who are in charge of the student court system.

The Legislative branch, most commonly known as Congress, is composed of representatives from academic departments, residence halls and other student organizations. Congress is considered to be the "voice of the student" to the other parts of the campus.

The SGA Cabinet has but one objective in mind at all times and that is to keep the interest of YOU, the student first. We want to be your link to the faculty, staff and administration at UTM.

But, you may ask, "What else does SGA do for me?" Among our responsibilities the providing of entertainment is approached with great concern. The upcoming Hall and Oates concert is an example of this responsibility. Also, we help coordinate leadership retreats, homecoming week, the Miss UTM Pageant and spirit projects for athletic events. This will even include patio discos, pep rallies and outdoor entertainment.

One of our major goals for the upcoming year is to improve SGA/Student Body relationships. We feel with your cooperation and participation that this is a reachable goal for SGA. If you have suggestions that you feel will help us to reach our goal sooner, please stop in and let us hear from you. Our office is located on the main floor of the University Center close to the radio station. Our doors are always open to you and your ideas.

Good Luck for a successful year!!

Superman Begins A Fall of Great Movies

Who's faster than a speeding bullet, able to leap tall buildings in a single bound and more powerful than a locomotive? It's Superman, of course, and he'll be speeding, leaping and fighting evil tonight as he appears in the Humanities Auditorium in a special Freshman Studies week presentation.

Showing at 6 p.m. and then again at 9 p.m., Superman I promises all the thrill and excitement that the heroic Clark Kent and the ever-curious Lois Lane can bring...but the action doesn't end with the Superman movie.

Beginning September 27, the Student Government Association will present a movie each Sunday at 3, 6 and 9 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom. Admission is $1, and the movies are as follows:

September 27, The Blues Brothers; October 4, The Jazz Singer; October 11, Stir Crazy; October 18, The Competition; October 25, Altered States; November 1, 1941; November 8, The Shining; November 15, Lady and the Tramp; November 22, Seems Like Old Times.
